“Harry Potter and the Secret Chamber of Dry Eye Spells”

Diagnosing Dry Eye Disease has advanced significantly over the last few years. Understanding the tear film and the effects on the corneal surface will initially be reviewed. Next, through the use of Harry Potter's sorting hat, we will be dividing the layers into: lipid, aqueous, mucin, and corneal epithelium. Once assessed, then we will discuss the appropriate diagnostic test, including, but not limited to: MMP-9, Osmolarity, and Meibography. Enter the Secret Chamber and learn all the Dry Spells we can perform as clinical wizards!

Presented by:
Seema Nanda, OD

Dr. Nanda practices alongside a corneal specialist at the Texas Eye Institute, a hospital-based ophthalmology group in Houston. Additionally, she instructs students as a Clinical Professor at UHCO in the Cornea and Contact Lens Clinic and in the Medical Laboratory Procedures course. Dr. Nanda received her doctorate from the Indiana University School of Optometry and trained at the world-renowned Bascom-Palmer Eye Institute. She lectures national and also served as Chief Examiner for the National Boards. Her areas of interest cover a variety of anterior segment conditions such as: refractive surgeries, contact lenses, dry eyes and their management.
